DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Mrs. Sarah E. Thornton, 83, wife of George Thornton, died at their home in Abington where they have been residents for many years. Mrs. Frank S. Kennedy of Danville and Mrs. Gordon E. Wither of Danielson are sisters of Mrs. Thornton.

Ladies' $1.00 rubbers for 75c pair; boys' $1.00 and $1.10 rubbers for 75c and 85c pair; men's $1.25 rubbers for 85c pair, at The Keystone Store, adv.

It was announced Wednesday that the plant of the Danielson Cotton company, which has been operated for the past few years by the New England Cotton Yarn company, has been sold to the Connecticut Mills company, Danielson's big tire fabric concern.

The deal has been pending for weeks, so its consummation will not be a great surprise to many of Danielson's people, but it is regarded everywhere as a very great piece of industrial news and one that further warrants the belief that this place is destined to become a very much larger Danielson within the next few years.

Particularly does the transaction please, because it further centralizes in Danielson the tremendous development of the Connecticut Mills company, now one of the foremost tire fabric manufacturing companies in the world.

The transfer of property includes not only the mill, but also all of the buildings of the Danielson Cotton company, on Water street, the White Row and Main street.

At the mill of the Danielson Cotton company it was stated by W. S. Pepler, Wednesday afternoon, that the concern is now engaged in running out the work and will be so engaged until the last of April or the early part of May.

Mr. Pepler, who is treasurer of the newly organized Peco Manufacturing company, for which concern a mill is to be built here and will be ready for occupancy May 1, said Wednesday afternoon that the sale of the Danielson Cotton company plant to the Connecticut Mills did not mean that the employees of the Danielson Cotton company will be left without work. On the other hand, the taking over of the plant by the Connecticut Mills and the opening of the Peco Manufacturing plant will mean that even a greater number of employees are working at the Danielson Cotton company plant will be needed under the new arrangement and with the new plant doing business here. The change means more work instead of less and more hands to accomplish it.

As the looms of the Danielson Cotton company plant are not of the type that will lend themselves to fire fabric weaving, they are being disposed of gradually. Some of the looms are going to the Killybegs company at Elmville, others to the River Weaving company here and still others are to be taken by the Peco Manufacturing company, the new concern. The spinning machinery in the Danielson Cotton company plant was taken out years ago, after what was known as the Danielsonville Cotton company, owned by the Cochrans of Danville, disposed of the plant.

The Connecticut Mills company now has four mills—two in Danielson, one at East Taunton and one at the Old Mill, at Fall River. The Taunton and Fall River mills produce yarn for the big weaving mill here, where no spinning has been done, but their output is not sufficient to keep pace with the demand for yarn at the local plant.

Benjamin F. Dawson, who has been the paying teller at the Danielson Trust company since that bank started to do business in November, 1914, has resigned to become cashier of the First National Bank of Plainfield, succeeding Charles C. A. Jerome. Mr. Dawson's decision to depart from Danielson and to enter a new banking field has been met with regret by the town, in which he has been a resident for many years. He has stood at the paying teller's window at the Danielson Trust company for many years and has been the friend of hundreds of local people, all of whom have been appreciative of his unvarying courtesy, efficiency and manifest interest in the business of the bank.

Before coming to Danielson Mr. Dawson was for three years with the Industrial Trust company of Providence, and there laid the foundations for a banking career that has unfolded with constantly increasing measure of success.

While Danielson will register its unanimous regrets over Mr. Dawson's decision to take the cashiership at Plainfield, it will congratulate the citizenry on the fact that the town is fortunate in getting the services of one whose methods of dealing with the banking public are certain of appreciation in any field.

At a meeting of business and professional men in the offices of Town Clerk Frank T. Preston, in the town hall building, Wednesday evening, details pertaining to the bringing here of the Peco Manufacturing company, which will weave cotton marquisettes, were given out and discussed in detail. The majority of those in attendance already have registered as subscribers in a voluntary association which is to erect the mill that will be occupied by the new concern. The mill and site will cost approximately $30,000, and of this amount, it was announced before the meeting opened, $25,000 had been pledged.

The subscribers under the agreement with the Peco company will receive a six per cent. net return annually on the money they will invest in the plant which the Peco company will purchase, paying for it in ten yearly installments of 10 per cent. each.

The Peco company officials are experienced manufacturers of cotton goods and a dined F. Powdrell, president of the Danielson Cotton company, is a well known manufacturer of cotton goods.

ident; J. W. Powdrell, vice president; W. S. Pepler, treasurer; Alfred Pate, agent. The Powdrells are Boston men. Messrs. Pepler and Pate are well known to the town. The Danielson public as manufacturers, both having been at the head of operations of the Danielson Cotton company here for several years.

Mr. Pepler said Wednesday afternoon that the Peco company will install the machinery, shafting and motor equipment in the new plant to be built by the voluntary association that has been formed here. The Peco company's investment at the outset will be in the vicinity of $100,000, and the concern will give employment to a large number of hands. The new mill is to be 200 feet by 75 feet, and to this additions will be made as needed. Title to the mill will remain in the name of the voluntary association for some time, but payments on the plant will be made by the Peco company at the rate of 10 per cent. of its sales each year, thus completing the payments by 1930. The company will operate 150 looms, and in addition will install preparatory machinery. Electric power will be used at the plant, which will be located on a site bordering the railroad within the borough limits, probably on upper Mechanic street. It is the plan to have the mill built, machinery installed and all ready for operation by May 1.

The list of subscribers of the voluntary association, the mill built by the mill is fully representative of Danielson and includes the following men: Judge Milton A. Shumway, J. Arthur Atwood, Dr. J. N. Petre, Dr. J. H. Jette, Dr. W. H. Knowles, Kent A. Darbie, George O. Thomas, Moses H. Berthiaume, Jr., Alfred L. Reed, J. N. Darville, Nathan D. Price, Laura Pilling, Aaron Gordon, Damase Boushais, Young Brothers company, W. S. Pepler, Alfred Pate, L. A. Bradford, A. Van Woodworth, E. H. Keach, Geo. J. Henneault, Gaston A. Maindon, Frank T. Preston, E. B. Wilbur, J. E. Elliott, Clarence A. Potter, C. S. Hyde, George I. Eaton, F. E. Elitgood.

At the meeting of the subscribers it was voted that the voluntary organization be called the Danielson Development association and a constitution and by-laws were adopted. The following seven men were elected as trustees: F. A. Jacobs, Alfred L. Reed, Charles A. Tillinghast, K. A. Darbie, D. E. Jette, F. S. Storer, Dr. W. H. Knowles.

Mattie Florence, wife of A. H. Walters, died during Tuesday night at the Walters home on Barrett Hill in the town of Brooklyn, where the family has lived for a number of years. Mrs. Walters was born in Millis, Mass., March 6, 1884, the daughter of Edwin T. Ackerman and Adda Lukins Ackerman. Mrs. Walters leaves behind her husband and son, Arthur, her father and two sisters, residents of Chicago.

George Henry Lovell, 73, a veteran of the Civil war and a member of James A. Nichols post, G. A. R. of Rockland, died at his home in the town of Foster, where he had been a resident for 19 years, coming there from Providence. Mr. Lovell was a native of Maine and was married to a woman who died many years ago. He leaves a wife and two daughters, Mrs. Leon F. Stone of North Foster and Mrs. Edward W. Ward of Westbury.

At the home of his father, Charles Stiles Foster, funeral services for Edmund C. Sabell, who died in the U. S. naval hospital at Philadelphia, were conducted by Rev. F. W. Lundrum pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church at Fairview, in the evening of Tuesday. The services were assisted by Rev. Harry St. John Filmer. Burial was in the Pine cemetery. The bearers were William Hopkins, William Gay, J. H. Theobald, Fred Hill and Harvey Fortine. A. F. Wood was the funeral director.

An automobile owned and driven by George S. Bradley, of Putnam, was slightly damaged early Wednesday morning. The car, which was being driven on the side of a southbound trolley car due in Danielson center at 1:20, the little accident occurring opposite the residence of T. B. Hodge on Main street. Mr. Bradley was driving north and tried without avail to get the wheels of his car out of the rut as the car moved toward him. Motorist Joseph Gay did not see the car until it was too late to stop, but wet rails prevented the brakes working as quickly as usual. The collision ripped a front fender off the trolley car and the fenders up on one side of Mr. Bradley's car, but the damage in either case was not great.

Members of C Company, State Guard, are interested in a regimental fund which is being collected, teams representing each company competing for scores that will lead to the selection of a team that will participate in the annual State Guard regatta. The fund is now being raised here each week the scores of the teams are being kept, and the week's targets show some very good work. The shooting is being done over indoor ranges of 50 feet with .22 caliber rifles. The local team is made up of Howard Whitney, C. W. Elmer, Elmer Wood, Frank Stinson, William Lafamme, Captain F. O. Armstrong, Lieut. Henry Burton, Rene Caron, Edward Burton and S. W. Burt. The team will shoot a night a week for seven weeks.

A writer in a column in a Boston paper makes the following comment, which is more or less correct, his figures are not being very far off from the way: "The population of the Windham County jail in Brooklyn, Conn., has decreased, since July 1, 1919, from 140 to 12. The majority of the inmates of the entire county are received at the jail, the drop in prisoners is considered significant. Perhaps, like Taunton jail in this state, it may have to go out of business for lack of patrons."

It is true that the patronage of the jail has diminished in very satisfactory manner since July 1, when the Boston paper claims, there was "upwards of 140" at the jail. In justice to Windham county's reputation it must be stated, however, that the jail at Brooklyn never in its history held upwards of 140 prisoners. The record high number at any one time was 119, and on the first day of last July there were just 12 prisoners at the jail. Wednesday afternoon the jail held 13 prisoners. Of these two were under sentence to state prison, where they will be transferred at the first opportunity, and another was a murder bound over for the higher court. Actually then only 10 are serving sentences at the jail this week.

The hearing on the petition of the Eastern Connecticut Power company for permission to sell electricity to the Acids Manufacturing company of Cantonville will be reopened on Friday at 10 o'clock by the Public Utilities commission. It has been disclosed that the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company was not notified of the original hearing and for that reason the matter is being reopened.

PUTNAM

Including the subscriptions officially reported to the office of the secretary and those subscriptions taken but not turned in, it was estimated Wednesday morning that approximately 1800 shares of the ninth series of the Putnam Building and Loan association had been taken.

At the annual meeting of the association the following officers were elected: President, John G. Johnson; vice president, Alexander Gilman; second vice president, Walter J. Bartlett; third vice president, John M. Den Jr.; secretary, Judge Mahlon H. Geisler; treasurer, Edward Moss; board of management, Henry J. Thayer, Omer J. Elliot, G. Harold Gilpatrick, T. B. Kent, Oscar Dugas, Ray C. Burrough, Herbert J. Smith, Leeburn B. Smith, who has served as president of the association since its organization four years ago, did not attend.

Later Mr. Bradley became an engineer for the Boston, Hartford and Erie railroad, as the line now running through this city to Williamstown was then known, and it is related of him that he drove for the building of this road the first stake set on this part of the line, near Mechanicville. Afterward Mr. Bradley was with other railroads, but returned to Putnam in 1912.

Another name was added Wednesday to the list of the well known residents of this city who have passed away within the past few months with the announcement of the death of Charles W. Bradley, prominent in this city's affairs for many years. Mr. Bradley had been in poor health for a long time and for the past few weeks his recovery had seemed very doubtful.

Mr. Bradley was born in Eastford in 1846, the son of William and Sarah Bosworth Bradley in the same room where his mother was born and had always lived, the home being situated near Crystal lake. His education was obtained in the schools of his native town, where he grew to manhood.

When Mr. Bradley first came to Putnam it was as clerk in a store conducted by Simeon Stone and located in a building on South Main street known for many years as the People's store. Mr. Stone was engaged in the dry goods and grocery business.

Later Mr. Bradley became an engineer for the Boston, Hartford and Erie railroad, as the line now running through this city to Williamstown was then known, and it is related of him that he drove for the building of this road the first stake set on this part of the line, near Mechanicville. Afterward Mr. Bradley was with other railroads, but returned to Putnam in 1912.
